

NAVIGATING A STORY

When reading a story, the user touches and drags the content upwards to proceed down the page. Stories consist of different chapters that can include images, videos, and quotes about the story topic.

This button returns the user to the story menu if they want to select a different story.

This button skips the user to the “References In The Codex” section of the story, which lists links to particular points in the Codex (see the section on “Insights”)

This bar tells the user how far they've progressed through the story.

The user can touch anywhere on the screen and drag upwards to continue the story.

Stories feature images, videos and quotes about their topic.
